

MVP stands for minimum viable product. It provides the bare bones design to help the user understand functionality before developing the full version of the product. The MVP of WarehouseDB shows the functionality of the application. Once the user logs on, he/she is shown the homepage where additional functions can take place. For example, the user can create a ticket. Once the ticket is created he/she can track it, see if a ticket is completed, etc.